

Disclosures of Your Information

In addition to specific circumstances referred to above, we may disclose your information to third parties in the following circumstances, where:-

- (i) you consent to such disclosure;
- (ii) we are legally required to do so by regulatory or law enforcement authorities;
- (iii) we, in good faith, believe it necessary to protect the personal safety of users or the public;
- (iv) we (in whole or in part) merge with, or are acquired by, another entity. If this happens, we may share any information or data that relates to you with any party who acquires all or part of our business; and/or
- (v) we are the subject of insolvency proceedings information may be disposed of in such a way as required by the courts.

We also reserve the right to disclose the information collected about you to our professional advisors.

Cookies

A cookie is a piece of data stored on your hard drive containing information about you.

Usage of a cookie is in no way linked to any personally identifiable information while on this Site. Once you close your browser, the cookie simply terminates. For instance, by setting a cookie on the Site, you would not have to log in a password more than once, thereby saving time while on the Site. If you reject the cookie, you may not be able to use every function of the Site.

Cookies can also enable us to track and target your interests to enhance your experience of the Site. Some of our business partners use cookies on this Site (for example, advertisers). However, we have no access to or control over these cookies.

Links

The Site contains links to other sites. Please be aware that we are not responsible for the privacy practices of other sites. We encourage you to be aware when you leave the Site and to read the privacy statements of each and every website that collects personally identifiable information. This privacy statement applies solely to information collected by us on the Site.

Newsletters/ Special Features

We occasionally send out newsletters to our members. We may also wish to provide you with information about special features of our Site or any other service or products we think may be of interest to you. This is an opt-in email option selected when you register to the Site. At any time you can alter your personal profile on the Site to disable any further emails.